

RUSS PARTY WILL FAVOR PEACE PLAN

PREMIER KERENSKY HAS BEEN DEPOSED BY MAXIMALISTS, WHO HAVE THE CONTROL OF PETROGRAD.

NO FIGHTING REPORTED

Maximalists Were Assisted in the Deposing of the Premier by the Petrograd Garrison.

London, Nov. 8.—Premier Kerensky of Russia has been deposed.

The Maximalists have obtained control of Petrograd and issued a proclamation saying the new government will propose immediate peace, the semi-official Russian news agency announced.

The Maximalists were assisted by the Petrograd garrison, which made possible a coup d'état without bloodshed.

Leon Trotsky, president of the central executive committee of the Petrograd council of soldiers and workmen's delegates, issued a declaration to the effect that the provisional government had been overthrown.

"Toward five o'clock in the afternoon the military revolutionary committee of the soldiers' and workmen's delegates issued a proclamation stating that Petrograd was in its hands, thanks to the assistance of the garrison, which enabled the coup d'état to be brought about without bloodshed.

"The proclamation declared the new government will propose immediate and just peace will hand the land to the peasants and will summon the constitutional assembly.

"Delegates from the three Cossack regiments quartered here, declared they would not obey the provisional government and would not march against the soldiers' and workmen's delegates, but were prepared to maintain public order.

"The Petrograd council of soldiers and workmen's delegates held a meeting this afternoon at which M. Trotsky made his declaration that the government no longer existed, some of the ministers had been arrested, and the preliminary parliament had been dissolved.

Nikoli Lenin, who received prolonged cheers, outlined three problems now before the Russian democracy.

"First, immediate conclusion of the war for which purpose the new government must propose an armistice to the belligerents.

"Second, the handing over of the land to the peasants.

"Third, settlement of the economic crisis."

At the close of the sitting a declaration was read from the democratic maximalist of the soldiers' and workmen's delegates, stating the party disapproved of the coup d'état and withdrew from the council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates.

London, Nov. 8.—A wireless dispatch from Petrograd says the council of soldiers' and workmen's delegates announced the split in the council has been healed and the call has been issued to the delegates from each of 25,000 of the population to express the will of the Russian army.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Petrograd says a strong detachment of troops of the soldiers' and workmen's delegates occupied the Baltic railway station and the government commandeer all motor cars, confining the troops to the barracks.

A proclamation sent out today and read here stated the garrison proclaims that Petrograd had deposed the Kerensky government.

Petrograd, Nov. 8.—The Maximalist movement toward seizing authority, rumors of which had been agitating the public mind ever since the formation of the last coalition cabinet, culminated last night when, without disorder, Maximalist forces took possession of the telegraph office and the Petrograd telegraph agency. Orders issued by the government for the opening of the 100,000-ton bridge across the Neva river later were overruled by the military committee of the council of soldiers' and workmen's delegates.

Communication was restored after several hours. Nowhere did the Maximalists meet with serious opposition. An effort by militiamen to disperse crowds gathered in the Nevsky and Leontyev Prostrets during the night provoked a fight in which one man is reported to have been killed. Minor disturbances, accompanied by shooting, occurred in various quarters of the city.

This morning found patrols of soldiers and sailors in the street maintaining order. Further than a continuation of the city presented no unusual aspect. The shops and banks which had opened for business began to do so about noon. Shortly after a force occupied the telephone exchange where a small guard had been stationed for weeks. An effort by government forces to retake the exchange led to a brief fusillade in which it is believed a number of casualties were caused. The Maximalists remained in possession of the building.

PLAY ORGANIZATION FOR DEVELOPMENT OF DISTRICT

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 8.—Big business men, farmers and laborers of the Chippewa Valley will organize the Chippewa Valley Co-operative association tonight.

Opening with a banquet, the assemblage here will effect an organization the purpose of which will be further development of the community along industrial, commercial and agricultural lines. Leaders in these lines are Holcombe, Vornel, Chippewa Falls, Stanley, Eau Claire, and all towns, hamlets and villages in the valley will be present.

Many prominent speakers will put forth the objects of the association.

Impressive Scene At Interment of Americans Killed In First Battle

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

With the American army in France, Wednesday, Nov. 7, by Associated Press, Nov. 8.—The first three American soldiers killed in the trenches in France tonight are sleeping in French soil honored by the American army and the people and army of France. Their final interment took place yesterday.

With the guard of French infantry men in their picturesque uniforms of red and horizon blue standing on one side, a detachment of American soldiers on the other, the flag wrapped caskets were lowered into the grave as buglers blew taps and the batteries at the front fired guns. As the guns went off the French officer commanding the division in the section paid tribute to the fallen Americans.

"Tribute Paid."

His words, which were punctuated by the roar of the guns and the whistle of shells, touched both the French and Americans. In conclusion the French officer said: "In the name of the —th division, in the name of the French army, and in the name of France I bid farewell to Private Enright, Private Gresham and Private Hay of the American army."

Gave Up Life.

"Of their three, they have left a prosperous and happy country to come over here. They knew war was continuing in Europe. They knew that the forces fighting for honor, love of justice and civilization were still checked by the long prepared forces serving the powers of brutal domination, oppression and barbarity. They knew that efforts were still necessary. They wished to give up their generous hearts and they have not forgotten old, historical memories while others forget more recent ones. Are Heroes."

"They ignored nothing of the circumstances and nothing has been concealed from them. They knew not the length and hardship of war, nor the violence of new battles, nor the fatuity of the foe, nothing stopped them; they accepted their hard and strenuous task. They crossed the ocean at great peril. They took their places at the front by our side, and have fallen facing the foe in a hard and desperate hand-to-hand fight. Honor to them. Their families, friends and fellow citizens will be proud when they learn of their death."

First to Die.

"Men, the heroes, the first to be dug in our common soil, and only a short distance from the enemy, are as a mark of the mighty land we and our allies firmly cling to in the common task confirming the will of the people and the army of the United States, to fight with us to the finish, ready to sacrifice as long as necessary until final victory for the noblest of causes, that of liberty of nations, the weak as well as the mighty. Thus the death of our humble soldiers appear to us with extraordinary grandeur.

Forever and Forever.

"We will therefore ask that the mortal remains of these young men be left with us forever. We inscribe on the tombs, 'Here lies the first soldier of the republic of the United States fall on the soil of France for liberty and justice.' The passersby will stop and uncover their heads, travelers and men of heart will go out of their way to come here to pay their respective tribute."

"Private Enright! Private Gresham! Private Hay! In the name of France I thank you. God receive your souls. Farewell."

SEVEN ARE KILLED IN BROOKLYN FIRE

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

New York, Nov. 8.—Five women and two men are believed to have been killed in the collapse of a third floor of a building in Brooklyn occupied by a concern supplying provisions to the United States government. An explosion and fire followed. One body that sion and fire followed. One body that survived the explosion, Mrs. Josephine Johanna Nuzum, was recovered from the ruins and firemen are searching for others.

The building, a four-story structure, was owned by the Johann Steamship company and located within a block of the two million dollar warehouse fire in Brooklyn. Heavy machinery stored on the upper floor was believed to be the cause of the collapse, which drop to the cellar resulted. About 35,000 bags of beans destined to the American forces in France were ruined.

MAKE A PRICE CUT ON HAM AND BACON

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Prices of ham and bacon to the consumers were cut five cents to ten cents by the Illinois food administration. The government completely controls the packing industry. The importance of the announcement while for the moment the cut applies only to Chicago, prices sent out will be present in the standard for the whole country.

NATIONAL MEETING PLANNED NEXT MONTH

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Westerville, Ohio, Nov. 8.—Plans are going forward for what is probably the most important national convention ever held by the National Anti-Saloon League when the body convenes at Washington Dec. 10. According to announcement made here at the national headquarters of the league, the governors of every state will be invited to attend and make addresses. William Jennings Bryan will speak.

Representatives of organized labor, trade granges, manufacturers and public life are to be asked to address the convention, and put special emphasis upon efforts to make the United States dry through the passage of an amendment to the federal constitution. A resolution looking to that end has been adopted by the senate and is to be brought up in the house early in December. Delegates from all parts of the country will attend.

Senators Morris Sheppard of Texas, Representative Edwin Yates Webb of North Carolina, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, and Representative Simeon D. Poets of Ohio have signified their intention of speaking. Other senators and representatives probably will be on the program, it is announced. Other speakers include Captain R. P. Hobson of Alabama, Sam W. Small of Tennessee, and Mrs. Anna Gordan of Weston, Fla., president of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union.

It is announced that every individual church organization or every denomination, every young people's society and temperance organization is invited to send a delegate. Churches will be urged to send their pastors.

INTEREST WILL BE CENTERED ON CONFERENCE IN PARIS
WHICH WILL COMMENCE
ITS WORK NOV. 15.

WILL WATCH RESULTS OF CONFERENCE

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Official interest in the United States today is centered on Paris, where on the fifteenth of the month the most momentous conference in American history will commence. Officials decline to discuss the instructions given to Colonel M. House, confidential adviser to President Wilson, who heads the American delegation.

Announcement of the safe arrival of the party yesterday afternoon was received here with a wonderful degree of relief, though every conceivable precaution enveloped the movements of the mission, which looked upon as the most important which has been made for one nation to another during the present world conflict and its deliberations with representatives of the other nations allied with the United States in its war on Prussianism are expected to mark the beginning of a stage of real harmony as to the war aims of the allies in a drive toward final victory.

It was only natural that Col. E. M. House should be chosen as the head of the mission. Probably more than any one individual he knows the views of the president on the aims and the reasons why the United States is a participant. He will be the spokesman of the president at the conference and his utterances will reflect the views of the chief executive.

The other members of the commission are: Admiral W. S. Benson, chief of naval operations; General Tasker H. Bliss, chief of staff, U. S. A.; Oscar T. Crosby, assistant secretary of the treasury; Vance C. McCormick, chairman of war trade board; Bainbridge Colby, United States shipping board; Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor, representing the food controller; Thomas Newell, representing the priority board; and Gorden A. Binnings, secretary of the bureau of navigation.

It is highly significant that this conference should assemble at a time when Russia has assumed a "passive" position in the war holding her lines until she can rehabilitate her army and restore complete order at home and while the world situation has changed so greatly that she has utilized to no small extent in furthering her ambitions for world dominion.

The supreme importance of Germany's monopoly on potash is the maximum. Germany is the only country in the world which has a monopoly which has wielded to date in the most arbitrary manner and which she has utilized to no small extent in furthering her ambitions for world dominion.

The secretaries of the treasury has given forth his denial of the reports that there would be a third loan in January of next year. "In view of the large oversubscription of the second Liberty loan," he said, "I am glad to state that this will not be necessary."

The treasury has decided that it will accept half of the over-subscription of the issue of $3,805,766,150. Ninety percent of the subscribers will receive their full amount which they subscribed for. All applications for $50,000 or less will be allotted in full and those above that amount will be cut in varying proportions, ranging from ninety percent allowance on subscriptions between $50,000 and $100,000 to forty percent for the largest single subscriber.

ONE THOUSAND POUNDS OF CARP SOLD AT CITY MARKET

Janesville's municipal fish market met with great success, today than it did on the first day of the opening on Thursday of last week. One thousand pounds of rough fish were put on sale this morning and the public soon purchased them. About six hundred pounds of carp were sold and four hundred pounds of red horse and suckers.

The price of six cents was charged for all the fish sold. Many housewives bought as high as forty pounds but the majority of the orders were for amounts of ten pounds or less.

NO NOTICE TO CALL OUT DRAFTED MEN YET RECEIVED

County Clerk Howard Lee has as yet received no notice to call out the drafted men of the county to fill the next quota for Camp Grant. Northern Wisconsin men received yesterday to report to Camp Custer at an early date, but to do no information of this nature has reached Mr. Lee. It is expected, however, that this call will come within the next few days.

ATHLETICS AT CAMP MACARTHUR ENJOYED ON EACH WEDNESDAY

(By Sergeant Beard)

Camp MacArthur, Waco, Tex., Nov. 1.—Hallowe'en in camp passed away very quietly but in the city the police had quite a time controlling the mischievous youngsters. Fire alarms were turned in from several street corners, obstructions were placed on the street car tracks, and state and city laws were violated all over the city.

In all instances where private property was damaged laws were violated and parents who allowed their children to engage in these things ought to be held as guilty as the rioters.

The police, as usual, were the goats for all the pranks that were pulled by thoughtless people who imagined they were celebrating Hallowe'en when in reality they were destroying public property and creating a general disturbance.

The patrol wagon was kept going from 7:30 last night until nearly 11 o'clock quelling disturbances and removing obstructions placed in the streets by Hallowe'eners. Four automobiles, a Ford and a bicycle were reported stolen, and things in general were torn.

Twenty-six boys were arrested at Fifth and Herring streets and brought to the city hall for raising a disturbance and interfering with the traction company's equipment. They were detained a few hours and turned loose with the command that they were to go home and stay there. A short while after the same bunch had to be arrested and taken to the calaboose. They were released by their parents and relatives about 11 o'clock.

At Twelfth and Concord streets a large signboard was torn down and placed in the street. Dry goods boxes, small trees and rails were placed on the signboard and the street was entirely obstructed.

On South Fifth street paving blocks were stretched across the street and an automobile ran onto them and the casing was ruined. Of course the police had to get to work and clear the street. The same was true of the Twelfth and Concord streets celebration.

A gang of negroes and whites congregated at Twelfth and Dutton streets and started a general rumpus. The police had to be called on to disperse the crowd.

The patrol had to go to the Turner street school house on the east side, and scatter another so-called Hallowe'en party which was trying to celebrate by doing as much damage as they could to the school building. Officer Mallard in chasing a negro at Rantoul and was then sent to England. The letter follows:

"Queen's College, Oxford, Eng., Oct. 16, 1917.

"I have just got back from church and have a few minutes to write before lunch. The church service was very interesting. It was Episcopal, of course, and about the same as at school, but the church was very old and odd.

"The people here are very hospitable and do everything they can to make us enjoy ourselves. We went to dance last night and had lots of fun. Instead of dancing girls, they asked us to dance with them. They like the old fashioned waltz and two-step and square dances, or 'lances,' as they call them. Of course we tried them all and before the evening was over we were doing the one-step, fox trot and all. Our passes were only good until 11 p. m. and we left about 10:30 so we would be in camp in plenty of time.

"Everyone here rides bicycles and so Moon, which rented one yesterday and rode way out in the country. The roads are wonderful—all paved.

"The food here is exceptionally good—lots better than I ever dreamed of in war time. We are in the Royal Flying corps now—the best flying corps in the world. We will be here at Queen's college for three more weeks and then be assigned to our air dromes for instruction.

"The other evening we went to the Oxford theater for the first time. The English theaters are quite odd. Men and women smoke during the performance in the theater and nothing is thought of it.

"A week ago Sunday we were inspected by a major from London, so we didn't get a chance to go to church. In the afternoon we went to church on the Trent river. That is, we went in a flat bottomed boat that we pushed along with a long pole. We had quite a time learning how to handle the pole but got along fairly well.

"The weather here is miserable. Not one day has gone by so far but what it has rained. It is worse than spring at home, and it is cold, too, which makes it very disagreeable.

"The other day we went to the English theater here. The English all work. Some work in flour mills with overalls and jackets. All cars are driven by women. Women clerk in stores and are street car conductors. They are surely doing their part in the struggle.

"You should see the caps we are wearing. It is a small cap set on the side of the head. We like them just like poison.

"It is just like being on a desert island as far as getting any news from America is concerned. I would like to see the sporting sections of the Sunday papers, but by the time you get this letter the football games will all be over."

Collegians who boast of athletic prowess ought to go out to Camp MacArthur and take a few lessons from the soldiers. They could get an eye full any day and no doubt they would be convinced that the camp can do it all over them for quality and quantity in every branch of sport.

One of the chief attractions yesterday was a red-hot football tandem between the 126th Michigan Infantry and the 127th Wisconsin Infantry. Both are regimental teams. The Badger state boys went down fighting to the Wolverines by the score of 27 to 0.

So fierce was the struggle that a physician was kept constantly busy caring for the victims of the skirmish. Six Wisconsin boys were laid out and four Michigan huskies took a brief vacation. Toward the close of the game, with Wisconsin threatening to score, a Michigan player kicked an opponent in the chin. This threatened to end the game until it was discovered that the player who was kicked was not seriously injured.

The 107th Engineers put on a field day program consisting of track events, football and baseball. This was without doubt the most strenuous schedule of the day. It consisted of twenty-two events under the direction of Maj. Ben F. Clegg.

Another exciting encounter between the second battalion of the 125th infantry and Co. I of the same regiment was staged on the baseball field. The day was just a little too hot for football but ideal in every respect for baseball. The baseball game ended with the score 9 to 3 in favor of Co. I.

after a ninth inning rally. The winners rapped out 16 hits and the losers 13. Efforts will be made to match the same teams for a game Sunday.

As a preliminary to the big football game at the Cotton Palace Saturday, between the thirty-second division and the thirty-third division from Houston, the Camp MacArthur team took on the 119th Field artillery eleven.

The division won by practically 30 to 0 without any danger of being scored on. The division team is in great shape for the big game and lovers of the gridiron sport are assured of seeing some real college football, combined with the army fighting spirit.

Saturday will be the opening day of the Cotton Palace exposition and the boys are expecting to receive their pay in full.

Company Notes.

Leut. Wood and Sergt. Lyns are attending a school for "hand grenade men."

Mechanic Rutledge finished installing the telephone system today, and tonight there is a telephone in the sergeant's tent, connected with a phone in the captain's tent. This new system is bound to save many extra steps.

The boys are all anxiously awaiting the opening of the Cotton Palace exposition so they can spend some of the money they expect to receive Saturday.

Cook Kueck and his assistants are quite proud of their kitchen since it has been all painted up.

GEO. SHERMAN WRITES OF LIFE IN ENGLAND

PLAYING POLITICS.

Under the guise of non-partisanship, loyalty and countless other titles, there is a nice little game of peanut politics being played right here in Wisconsin these days that would put to shame the average Tammany Hall leader who is rejoicing over the return to the flesh pots of the New York City treasury after long lean years in both local and federal patronage. When you take a disgruntled politician, the men who have risked all and lost, the men who have lost caste with their political parties, by bolting the party nominee, men who have seen their idol shattered by unpopular, distasteful actions, combine, then look for the "nigger in the wood pile." He is there sure and certain, and a wolf in sheep's clothing is not more to be feared by the careful shop and who guards his flock than such an unholy combination. No one man is infallible, no little coterie of men not subject to grievous errors, but certainly the bible teaches us that he who is without sin may cast the first stone. Just now the question arises who will be the next United States senator to succeed the late Paul Husting? There are three ways his successor can be named. One, by the legislature, giving the governor power to appoint a senator until the next general election. Second, by holding a special election, and third, by deferring the election until the next general election, next year. Which will the state choose? This remains the problem. The hue and cry for a special election, at which every Tom, Dick and Harry would become a candidate, and it would be Hobson's choice in making the final selection, has been raised owing to the fact the governor intimated he would ask special permission of the coming special session of the legislature to grant him appointment powers as prescribed by the federal amendment. Possibly if he stated whom he would appoint, if given the power, there might still be tumult, but still the question remains, would it be a wise course, as friends of other "favorite sons" would then move heaven and earth to prevent the legislature giving the governor his desired power. It is up to the governor to either call a special election or permit the office to remain vacant until the election next year, and it is a safe bet that the latter would be the course pursued if the legislature refuses his request. Possibly the federal administration may make some suggestion that will clarify the atmosphere and leave the politicians of the peanut stripe out in the cold. No one can tell, but stranger things than that have happened and history might repeat itself. Better have no successor to Husting named at present than choose the wrong man. The Lord knows we are misrepresented enough as it is down at Washington.

WHY NOT?

Except in cities where the old-fashioned antiquated ideas are in control and modern methods are looked at as the invention of the devil, in communities where the oldest inhabitant recalls the days of the old hand-pump on the fire engine and the cry of "wash 'em," the modern day fire-fighter is given every opportunity to keep himself physically fit for the hour of need. If you are an average citizen who believes in efficiency of all employees, take a visit to one of our three fire stations and see what accommodations for the exercise of the men employed there night and day actually exists.

In the first place there are too many fire stations for a city the size of Janesville, and in the second place since the department became "electrified" as it were by the installation of motor-driven fire apparatus, the men employed have but little opportunity for exercise. In the days of a few months ago they had the horses to care for and exercise, but now this is denied them and between fires these men we expect to be most active in time of need have no means of exercise.

Consolidation of the department, furnishing suitable equipment at a small expense for a gymnasium and proper shower baths, sanitary sleeping quarters and other improvements would work wonders for the Janesville department. It would make the men more efficient in time of need and would also make them more contented. Not that they lack pep or are subject to criticism for not doing what they should do at present, but why not make them more efficient?

Why not carefully consider the consolidation of the various fire departments? This is the age for concentration and with our auto trucks it would make but a few seconds difference if the entire department was located on the west of the river, or the east side. As it is now, one department must phone the other house before leaving, causing a delay, and this would be obviated by combination of the two down town departments. At least let's hear what the city officials and the general public think of the suggestion. If not, why not?

MORAL SUPPORT.

Moral support should be given the boys who are "somewhere in France" and those who are in training in this country at the various camps and cantonments by liberal subscription to that army Y. M. C. A. fund. These boys are all human and prone to human thoughts and suggestions. They will fight better, they will live better and come back to us cleaner men for the environments they will find in the army "Y" huts. Be liberal and give your soldier friends the chance. Give of your money, you men and women, who can not actually fight, and give liberally.

TAMMANY AGAIN.

Tammany has again swept the New York city elections. The old, prosperous days for Tammany hall have returned. They control the coffers of the largest city in the United States and woe befall the person who objects to the wholesale "slaughter of the innocents" while the opportunity lasts. Mitchel was turned down for a political pure and simple. Possibly the German sympathizers played an important part in the selection, but at any rate the election is over and it is no time for vain regrets. It is a grateful thought that Chicago repudiated socialism by such an overwhelming vote, and probably this will have its moral effect upon those who are pacifists and pro-German sympathizers. Let us hope so.

SUFFRAGE.

Apparently suffrage has won in New York state, but lost in Ohio. The fight has been a most bitter one in the land of Gotham and no one need be surprised that woman has come to her own at last. The great work they are called upon to do these war days should give them recognition, if nothing else.

Let us hope that before the next Liberty loan drive begins the federal government will study out the best way to market the bonds and put it up on a business basis. Every bond will be at a premium that is issued, but why ask amateur salesmen to devote their time to the work and waste millions on useless advertising when a few judicious advertisements placed at a minimum cost and the employment of capable bond salesmen would do the work far better? The average business man is too busy to devote time to promote the sale of these bonds and should not be asked to do so. While it is a patriotic duty, the same results could be obtained at far less expense by the government and less trouble to the individual.

Animal, mineral or vegetable? To which kingdom do you belong? If to the animal kingdom you can be approached and told what is needed of you, for even the dumbest "critter" can learn something. If to the mineral, you are as a block of granite with no feeling and no sensibility. To the vegetable, like a spongy potato, or a last year's tomato, preserved, perhaps, but totally insensible to the situation that confronts this nation to strain every nerve to meet the food and money emergency. Figure it out for yourself and then give liberally to the Y. M. C. A. war fund now in process of collection.

Over the sea. This is the report that comes from many a recruit in the army today. They are proud and happy to think they are called upon to actually fight for the stars and stripes and humanity and peace in general. The Italian drive will doubtless force our men into the trenches sooner than anticipated, but none too soon to suit the men who enlisted to fight for Uncle Sam. Bill, over there in Berlin, will find what stuff this American people are made of before he is many months older.

Farmers with tobacco crops in their sheds not cured are warned not to become too disheartened by failure to cure. It is suggested that the leaf be permitted to remain hanging for several months yet, taken down in January, what is cured, packed, and the remainder tied in bands and hung to further dry and cure until next spring. In this way four-fifths of the present crop can be saved. It is suggested the growers consult the buyers about how to handle the crop so as to bring the best results.

All the tales of the horror of warfare with the untutored North American Indian torture at the stake, or even of the inquisition, pale into insignificance when the actual stories of the barbaric treatment of women and children by the German soldiers are related. The average citizen does not want to believe them true, but unfortunately they are.

Those first United States soldiers to feel the vengeance of the Huns certainly displayed the true American spirit and their heroism will not be forgotten even in the relating of the future tales of similar demonstrations by other soldiers who will encounter these fierce tribesmen of the War Lord of the Prussians.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.
BECOMING A DAD.

Old women say that men don't know the pain through which all mothers go. And maybe that is true, and yet I vow I never shall forget.

That night he came, I suffered, too. Those bleak and dreary long hours through I paced the floor and mopped my brow.

And waited for his glad wee-ow! I went upstairs and then came down. Because I saw the doctor from And knew beyond the slightest doubt he wished to goodness I'd clear out.

I walked into the yard for air And back again to hear her there, And met the nurse, as calm as though

My world was not in deepest woe.

And when I questioned, seeking speech

Of consolation that would reach

My soul and quiet the other side, For dry my heart that were to be.

Progressing nicely!" that was all.

She said and tip-toed down the hall, "Progressing nicely." Nothing more.

And left me there to pace the floor.

And once the nurse came out in a haste.

For something that had been misplaced.

And I that had been growing bold.

Then felt my blood grow icy cold;

And felt a stern chill sweep over me

And shuddered and watched and tried to see

Just what it was she came to get,

I haven't learned that secret yet,

I half-believe that nurse in white

Was adding fuel to my fight

And taking an unholy glee

From time to time in torturing me.

Then silence! To her room I crept

And was informed the doctor slept.

The doctor slept! Oh, vicious thought,

While I lay at death's door bravely

And fought.

And suffered untold anguish deep.

The doctor lulled himself to sleep.

I looked and saw him stretched out flat.

And could have killed the man for that.

Then morning broke, and oh, the joy

With dawn there came to us our boy,

And in a glorious little while

I went in there and saw her smile!

I must have looked a human wreck,

My collar wilted at the neck,

My hair awry, my features drawn

With all the suffering I had borne.

She looked at me and softly said,

"If we're you, I'd go to bed."

Her's was the bitter part I know,

She traveled through the vale of woe

But now when woe's folk recall

The pain and anguish of it all,

I answer them in manner sad:

"It's no cinch to become a dad."

U. S. NEEDS TYPISTS
AND STENOGRAPHERS

Assistant Postmaster J. G. Hemming has received a notice issued by the government which calls for stenographers and typewriters. The government is in urgent need of stenographers and typists and has been for a long time in need of the "army" in such an army. These positions are open to both men and women and the examination will be held at the Post Office on November 23. The usual entrance salary for this position ranges from $1,000 to $1,200 a year.

Applicants should at once apply for Forms 304 and 1424, stating the title of the examination desired, to the Assistant Postmaster J. G. Hemming. Applications should be properly executed, excluding the medical certificate and need not be arranged for the examination of the applicant. Special attention is called to the date of the examination.

Notice!

Some maliciously inclined persons have circulated the story that the Aschert Furniture Store is going to sell out.

We wish to correct this impression and say that we are still looking for business. We have a good size clean stock, purchased at cash prices and paid for. We are in a position to make quite as low a price as any store in the city.

Further, we have just engaged a thoroughly competent undertaker and funeral director who is a graduate of the Barnes School of Embalming and has had years of experience. He comes to us highly recommended.

NOTE IMPROVEMENT OF CO. C. MEMBERS AT ROCKFORD CAMP

Co. C, 331st Machine Gun Battalion, Camp Grant, Nov. 8.—After completing seven weeks of stiff training the men of Co. C have shown as much if not more improvement both in drilling and physical appearance than any other company in the 331st Machine Gun Battalion.

At drilling the men are wonderful considering the short time they have been at it and within the last two months the improvement will be still greater. The main reason set forth for this is that the men have put forth in their new life, and the officers and the company have found that the men of Co. C are willing to go the limit in order to get ahead of the other companies of this battalion.

In physical appearance the men have shown a remarkable change. When reaching here many of the men were in poor physical condition, owing to the life they had been living at home. Some had stooped shoulders, others no wind, and many other ailments of this nature. Today there is not a man in the company who does not stand erect, with shoulders thrown back, and who if called upon could run a considerable length of time without showing any marks of fatigue.

Private Rolland Hanaman, who had worked in an office since leaving school, when interviewed last evening claimed he had gained twenty pounds and never felt better in his life. Scott Johnstone says that in life he has been led a hard life, but in the past few weeks he has had a world of good. Sgt. Dave Cunningham, who always did lean skyward, claims he has grown an inch since arriving and has hopes of still adding a couple of inches. Mess Sgt. Jack Hendrickson states that he caught up early in the morning without someone dragging him out of bed.

Not only these but every man in company C is a fine specimen. The old adage "Early to bed and early to rise" they all like their new mode of living and when they return to civil life they will be much better fitted for their battle of life than they were before coming to Camp Grant.

While the men of Co. C, 331st Machine Gun battalion, were in the midst of their evening's entertainment Saturday the lights were suddenly turned out and the men left in the darkness. Immediately the men started to imagine all sorts of things. Some stated that there was a fire in Rockford, others came forward with the argument that the coal supply had run short, and the more pessimistic claimed that the officers expected a Zeppelin raid. After being left in the darkness for about an hour the lights were suddenly turned on and the men resumed their entertainment.

Many of the men of Co. C are taking advantage of the French school that is being organized and conducted in the different Y. W. C. A. of this command. The men are taught conversational French and all are high in praise of the school. One of the men of the company on being asked by the teacher if the course was satisfactory answered in the affirmative but stated he had one exception and when asked what it might be he stated he would like to learn to swear in French.

A debating society is to be organized by the different men of the 331st Machine Gun battalion. The society is open to any man who desires to enter and a teacher will be gotten to assist them. Corporal Paul E. Orlitz is a charter member of the organization.

Our basket ball team will soon get started and many of the men of the company are getting very anxious. Sgt. Harold Stickney claims that the company will have one of the strongest quintets in the camp. Sgt. Cronin, who played a few games with the champion Jansenville Cardinals, is another man who is anxious to get his hands on a basket ball.

The entire company was called out last evening at 6 o'clock as a fire was discovered in the district south of the barracks. The men were held in readiness to assist in any way they could but the blaze was a small one and easily extinguished.

Sgt. William McIntosh easily holds the camp sleeping record and can be found reposing in his bunk any time during the day when not actually engaged with the men.

Louis Rossini, a young one of the biggest surprises yet on the men of the camp, who displayed a brand new pillow. It is far the classiest article that has been seen in the barracks as yet.

Edward Bye of Co. B is a frequent visitor in the barracks of Co. C. Private Bye states that he has to call on the Edgerton boys to give and take all the news of the Tobacco City.

Private George Donow of Edgerton is one of the quietest men of the company, and if he did not speak occasionally one would think he was deaf and dumb. But George claims that silence is golden.

Private John Fisks, another product of the Tobacco City, is strong for his home town and if one was to believe him it is a wonderful city.

Private Misses of Beloit is still worrying over the bowling season and each evening about 7:30 one can hear him say, "Well, business is just starting in the old city."

Sgt. Donald Brown of Beloit is one of the best men in the entire company and whether he receives mail or not Brown still smiles, and his smiles are a blessing to many a man.

Private Adolph Olson of Edgerton is rapidly rounding into a first-class soldier and the natives of his home town will sure sit up and take notice the next time Adolph walks down that old Main street.

Private Arthur Goodwin returned Sunday after a short visit in Beloit, and claims that he wouldn't mind visiting there every Saturday, as all the girls are so awfully nice to a soldier.

The men of Co. C are rapidly developing into a first-class choir under the direction of Camp Singing Instructor Arthur Nevin, and all the men are high in their praise of the mass singing. "Keep the Home Fires Burning," "Good By," "Brother, Come to France" are the two popular songs.

Private Skolka of Edgerton is another member of the silent squad and is a very hard task for a man to try to engage him in conversation. Are all the folks in the Tobacco City as backward as that?

Private M. Kennedy is getting to be a very busy man lately and between him and Private Premo it is hard to distinguish which one does the most work.

Private Earl Garrott of Jansenville always has plenty to eat and he is not the least bit stingy, and all are welcome to partake of anything that Earl has in the edible line.

Army life has a tendency to bring out the versatility of a man. Mess Sgt. John Hendrickson was a bookkeeper before entering the national army but he is getting away with his new job like a veteran has gotten.

Sgt. Frank Byrnes of Private Carlson, known as the "Gold Dust Twins," are just as inseparable as ever. They link together, eat together, kill either because one of them is ill or because one of them is well.

If Rolland Hanaman of Beloit would save all the fruit and candy he receives he would soon be able to stock up a large canteen of his own.

Corporal Frank Koehler of Jansenville is said to be the best sprinter in the company. He practices every time the mail arrives.

Early in October, the congregations of three churches, the Congregational, Methodist and Baptist gave their contributions, amounting to $77.00, to Dr. M. L. Ewing, supervisor of the work and knitting departments, for work and knitting departments. This money was given to Dr. Ewing and not deposited with the funds at the bank. Consequently at this annual meeting, the Evansville Red Cross society had a small amount of money to its credit, but is in need of more funds for working purposes.

The following is the report of the work done by the Evansville branch of the Red Cross for the four months ending Nov. 1st, 1917, as submitted by the supervisor, Dr. M. L. Ewing.

Articles Already Shipped ..... 50.00
568 shoulder wraps, 68 sets of pajamas, 996 handkerchiefs, 19 pairs of bed socks, 24 dress cloths, 72 hot water bag covers, 1 bath robes, 204 towels, 25 knit wash cloths, 228 wash cloths, 183 napkins, 12 bed shirts, 12 shoulder wraps.

Mrs. Oneta Dayton and son of Chicago are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Dell. John Van Vleck paid a short visit here recently. John and family are moving into the Mrs. Potter house on West Liberty street.

Rev. J. C. Lees has been quite ill at his home on North First street.

Mrs. Warren Cain and son Robert spent Tuesday in Cannville with relatives.

Mrs. Burr Tolles, phone 344 private, represents the Gazette in Evansville.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brown, of East Center, entertained company from Janesville for dinner Sunday.

MYERS THEATRE

"Stop! Look! Listen!"

"Stop! Look! Listen!" which is booked to appear at the Myers theatre next Sunday evening, Nov. 11, is another of Charles Dillingham's successes. It contains a wealth of cleverly written songs, a remarkable cast of vaudeville headliners, wondrous entertainment, a couple of carloads of impressionistic scenery and costumes enough to make three shows of its type. There are lots of girls and pretty ones and things never lug. The chorus is large in number, excellent in voice, and the pieces of the most jingling variety, written by Irving Berlin. What more could be asked? It comes to the Myers theatre direct from a phenomenal run at the Auditorium, Chicago.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Mrs. Thompson: Some very bad questions have been troubling me for some time and at last I have come to you for answer. I am sixteen years old and am considered very pretty. I have light hair and blue eyes and the boys all call me blue eyes, and I am considered considerably with boys flirting with me. What I want to know is this:

(1) When boys I have not met speak to me on the street, what is right to do? Should I speak to them, or turn away?

(2) I have two boy friends who tell me they love me. One is quite old and has always gone with other girls. The other is my own age. Which one do you think I ought to keep company with?

(3) The younger one doesn't want me to go with the other, should I mind him?

(4) How late is it proper for boys to stay when calling on a girl?

(5) Should my mother remain in the room when they are there?

BABY BLUE EYES.

(1) Turn away. You will lose your reputation if you speak to boys who are not with you. If you did not look at them in the first place they would have had no chance to speak.

(2) You are too young to be going with boys. If you go with a crowd of boys and girls together the younger ones would be more in place than the older ones.

(3) The older one is too old for you. The younger one would not go with him.

(4) Ten or ten thirty.

(5) Just as she wishes. If she thinks you should not be left alone with the boys, she should remain in the room. As you are so young, it is perhaps best if she does stay in the same room

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Hoyt will answer all questions on matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of this paper. If a personal answer is desired, enclose a two-cent stamp.)

A letter should be destroyed as soon as it has been answered, unless it is necessary for some reason to send it to another.

POLLY: You say that the young man that you are going with tells you that he loves you, and yet you are engaged to him. Any young man who makes such a statement, and does it at the same time as the girl to whom he insults her. A proposal of marriage should always accompany a declaration of love, and a wise young woman will have nothing to do with the man who fails to meet the obligation.

S. F.: A bride should wear her gloves during the wedding ceremony. She may remove her left glove when the time comes for placing the ring, handing it to the maid of honor, and again, at the close of the ceremony, or the seam of the third finger of the left glove may be ripped so that it may be slipped off in order to put on the ring, and it can be slipped into place again immediately afterwards. This is probably the better way to manage.

The reason he has been keeping it up is because he knows you notice him. Don't look at him at all and he will soon stop.

Coffee.

Luncheon:
Italian Macaroni.

Ceclery. Rye Bread.

Raisin Compote.

Dinner:
Clear Vegetable Soup.

Sweet Potatoes. Spinach.

Sliced Oranges.

Raisin Compote—Raisin compote is a delicious dessert and is not expensive, especially if the provident housewife has her own supply of home-made grape juice. Seed the raisins carefully and let them soak over night in the juice. When the juice is well strained bring slowly to a boil, add a little sugar to suit the individual taste and boil until the "mixture" is quite thick. It may be served hot on thin slices of buttered toast, French toast, steamed rice or farina. It will prove a very popular dessert with the children of the family.

MEATLESS DISHES.

Nut Croquettes With Tomato Sauce

(prepare the day before using)—One cup pecan nut meats ground (not too fine), one cup bread crumbs, one tablespoon freshly cooked onions, one tablespoon lemon juice, sufficient thick white sauce to mix quite moist (about one cup), salt, pepper and parsley. Roll into croquettes. Roll in egg and deep bread crumbs and fry either in deep fat or sauté in frying pan. Tomato Sauce: Use one can of tomato soup and bind with thin white sauce (one cup or less). This is an inexpensive dish and makes a dainty dessert.

TO WAX FLOORS

Apply by means of a flannel cloth beeswax which has been thinned with turpentine. Then rub into the floor well. This is a hard wax and can hardly be applied without the turpentine, but the latter quickly evaporates and the wax then forms a very durable finish. If one has no beeswax, paraffin wax will do just as well, but it is less durable.

BREAD.

Boston Brown Bread: One pint sour potatoe, one tablespoon soda,

one teaspoon salt, one cup brown sugar,

three cups graham flour, one egg,

if wish can add raisins. This makes two loaves.

THE TABLE

Meat Loaf (to serve three people)

HIGH FLOUR PRICES

SET BY RETAILERS

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—The retail price of flour in Milwaukee is altogether too high, according to County

Food Administrator Patrick P.

Donahue. Mr. Donahue said that the retailer is making at least $3 on a barrel of flour. He said that $1 would be a fair profit.

"Flour of good quality can be bought in a general store at $1.80 a barrel," said Mr. Donahue. "Retailers are selling it from $1.80 to $1.80

in quarter barrel lots.

"Several retailers are buying directly from the mill. If one of these does not buy enough alone to warrant the mill selling direct to him, he and another may give a joint order.

They sell to the consumer in quarter barrel sacks at $3.20 each, or $1.80 a barrel. Their cost for you is 25c a pound, and able to get the profit on the flour.

Relief from Eczema

Don't worry about eczema or other skin troubles. You can have a clean, healthy skin by using a little Zeno, obtained at any druggist for 35c, or extra large bottle at $1.00.

Zeno generally removes pimples, blackheads, blotches, eczema and ringworm and makes the skin clear and healthy. Zeno is a clean, penetrating, antiseptic liquid, neither sticky nor greasy and stains nothing. It is easily applied and costs a mere trifle for each application. It is always dependable.

CHAPTER I.

The men who govern India—more power to them and her!—are few. Those who stand in their way and pretend to help them with a flood of words are a host. The charge has seen the light in print that India—well-spring of plague and sudden death and money leaders—has sold her soul to twenty succeeding conquerors in turn.

So when the world was broken the world was destined to be surprised on India's account. The Red sea full of racing transports crowded with dark-skinned gentlemen, whose one prayer was that the war might not be over before they should have struck a blow for Britain, was the Indian army's answer to the press.

More than one nation was deeply shocked by India's answer to "practices" that had extended over years. But there were men in India who learned to love India long ago with that love that ends out fear, who knew exactly what was going to happen and could therefore afford to wait for orders instead of running round in rings.

Athelstan King, for instance, nothing yet but a captain unattached, sat in meagrely furnished quarters with his heels on a table. He is not a doctor, yet he read a book on surgery; and when he went over to the club he carried the book under his arm and continued to read it there. In the other room where the telegraph blanks were littered in confusion all about the floor, the other officers sent telegrams and forgot King, who sat and smoked and read about surgery; and before he had nearly finished one attitude. Some men swear he looks like a Roman, and others liken him to a gargoyle, all of them choosing to ignore the smile that can transform his whole face instantly.

"We're demanding India of troops—not keeping back more than a mere handful to hold the tribes in check."

King nodded. There has never been peace along the northwest border. It did not need vision to foresee trouble from that quarter. In fact it must have been partly on the strength of some of King's reports that the general was planning now.

"Well, the tribes'll know presently how many men we're sending overseas. There've been rumors about Khinjan by the hundred lately. They're cooking something. Can you imagine 'em keeping quiet now?"

"That depends, sir. Yes, I can imagine it."

The general laughed. "That's why I sent for you. I need a man with imagination! There's a woman you've got to work with on this occasion who can imagine a shade or two too much. What's worse, she's ambitious. So I chose you to work with her."

King's lips stiffened under his mustache, and the corners of his eyes wrinkled into crow's feet to correspond. Eyes are never coal-black, of course, but his looked it at that minute.

"You know we've sent men to Khinjan who are said to have entered the caves. Not one of 'em has ever returned."

King frowned.

"She claims she can enter the caves and come out again at pleasure. She has offered to do it, and I have accepted. Can you guess who she is?"

"Not Yasmin?" King hazarded, and the general nodded. The helmet-strap mark, printed indelibly on King's jaw and cheek by the Indian sun, tightened and grew whiter—as the general noted out of the corner of his eye.

"Know her?"

"Know of her, of course, sir. Everybody does. Never met her to my knowledge."

"Um-n-n! Whose fault was that? Somebody ought to have seen to that. Go to Delhi now and meet her. I'll send her a wire to say you're coming. She knows I've chosen you. She tried to insist on full discretion, but I overruled her."

King's tongue licked his lips, and his eyes wrinkled. The general's voice became the least shade more authoritative.

"When you see her, get a pass from her that'll take you into Khinjan caves! Ask her for it! For the sake of appearances I'll gazette you seconded to the Khyber rifles. For the sake of success, get a pass from her!"

"Very well, sir."

"You've a brother in the Khyber rifles, haven't you? Was it you or your brother who visited Khinjan once and sent in a report?"

"I did, sir."

He spoke without pride. Even the brigade of British-Indian cavalry that went to Khinjan on the strength of his report had leveled its defenses with the ground, had not been able to find the famous caves. Yet the caves themselves are a byword.

"There's talk of a jihad (holy war). There's worse than that! When you went to Khinjan, what was your chief object?"

"To find the source of the everlasting rumors about the so-called 'Heart of the Hills,' sir."

"Yes, yes, I remember. I read your report. You didn't find anything, did you? Well, the story is now that the 'Heart of the Hills' has come to life. So the spies say."

King whistled softly.

"There's no guessing what it means," said the general. "Go and work with Yasmin. The spies keep bringing in rumors of ten thousand men in Khinjan caves, and of another large jahshkar not far away from Khinjan. There must be no jihad, King! This story is all but defenseless! This story about a 'Heart of the Hills' coming to life may presage unity of action and a holy war such as the world has not seen. Go up there and stop it if you can. At least, let me know the facts."

King grunted. To stop a holy war single-handed would be rather than stopping the wind—possibly easy enough, if one knew the way. Yet he knew no general would throw away a man like himself on a useless venture. He began to look happy.

The general cracked his whip without any other comment than a smile. A blood mare tore sparks out of the macadam, and a dusty military road began to ribbon out between the wheels. Sentries in unexpected places announced themselves with a ring of shaken steel as their rifles came to the "present," which courtesies the general noticed with a raised whip. On the dogcart's high front seat, staring straight ahead of him between the horse's ears, King listened. The general did nearly all the talking.

"The North's the danger."

King grunted with the lids half-closed over full, dark eyes. He did not look especially handsome in that attorward.

"Sorry—have to keep you all waiting—busby!" He waved them aside with a little apologetic gesture. "Come in here, King."

King followed him through a door that slammed tight behind him on rubber jams.

"Sit down!"

The general unlocked a steel drawer and began to rummage among the papers in it. In a minute he produced a package, bound in rubber bands, with faded photograph face upward on the top.

"That's the woman! How d'you like the look of her?"

King took the package and for a minute stared hard at the likeness of a woman whose fame has traveled up and down India, until her witchery has become a proverb. She was dressed as a dancing woman, yet very few dancing women could afford to be dressed as she was.

The general watched his face with eyes that missed nothing.

"Remember—I said work with her!"

King looked up and nodded.

"They say she's three parts Russian," said the general. "To my knowledge she speaks Russian like a native, and about twenty other tongues as well, including English. She was the girl widow of a rascally hill rajah. I've heard she loved her rajah. And she claims she can enter the caves and come out again at pleasure. She has offered to do it, and I have accepted. Can you guess who she is?"

"Not Yasmin?" King hazarded, and the general nodded. The helmet-strap mark, printed indelibly on King's jaw and cheek by the Indian sun, tightened and grew whiter—as the general noted out of the corner of his eye.

"Know her?"

"Know of her, of course, sir. Everybody does. Never met her to my knowledge."

"Um-n-n! Whose fault was that? Somebody ought to have seen to that. Go to Delhi now and meet her. I'll send her a wire to say you're coming. She knows I've chosen you. She tried to insist on full discretion, but I overruled her."

"Yes, yes, I remember. I read your report. You didn't find anything, did you? Well, the story is now that the 'Heart of the Hills' has come to life. So the spies say."

King grunted. A man who trusts

Eastern women over readily does not rise far in the secret service.

"If you've got nous enough to keep on her soft side and use her—not let her use you—you can keep the 'Hills' quiet and the Khyber safe! If you can contrive that—now—in this pinch—there's no limit for you! Commander in chief shall be your job before you're sixty!"

King pocketed the photograph and papers. "I'm well enough content, sir, as things are," he said quietly.

The general paced once across the room and once back again, with hands behind him. Then he stopped in front of King.

"No man in India has a stiffer task than you have now! A jihad launched from the 'Hills' would mean anarchy in the plains. That would entail sending back from France an army that can't be spared. There must be no jihad, King! There must—not be one! Keep that in your head!"

"What arrangements have been made with her, sir?"

"Practically none! She's watching the spires in Lhasa, but they're likely to break for the 'Hills' any minute. Then they'll be arrested. When that happens the fate of India may be in your hands and hers! Get out of my way now, until fifteen-time!"

In a way that some men never learn, King proceeded to efface himself entirely among the crowd in the hull, contriving to say nothing of any account to anybody until the great gun boomed and the general led them all in to his long dining table. Yet he did not look furtive or secretive. Nobody noticed him, and he noticed everybody. There is nothing whatever secretive about that.

The fare was plain, and the meal a perfunctory affair. The general and his guests were there for no other reason than to eat food, and only the man who happened to seat himself next to King—a major by the name of Hyde—spoke to him at all.

"Why aren't you with your regiment?" he asked.

"Because the general asked me to lunch, sir!"

the king's name I order this man's arrest."

I saw De Baugis step forward, his hand outstretched; then all was confusion and struggle. With the hoarse snarl of a beast, Cassion leaped forward, struck La Forest with his shoulder, and drove sword point into D'Artigny. De Tonty gripped him, but was hurled aside by insane strength, reeling back so that the weight of his body struck me to my knees. The next instant, his sword point dripping blood, the runner was beyond reach, speeding for the open gate. What followed I know from word of others, and no view I had of it.

D'Artigny had fallen, cuddled in a heap on the grass, and I dragged myself to him on my knees. I heard oaths, a shuffling of feet, a rush of bodies, a voice I did not recognize shouting, some order—then the sharp crack of a rifle, and silence. I cared not what had occurred; I had D'Artigny's head in my arms, and his eyes opened and smiled up at me full of courage.

"You are badly hurt?"

"No, I think not; the thrust was too high. Lift me, and I breathe better. The man must have been mad."

"Surely yes, monsieur; think you he had hope of escape?"

"'Tis likely he thought only of revenge. Ah, you are here also, De Tonty."

"Yes, lad; there is small use for me, you are not seriously struck."

"I bleed freely, but the thrust was in the shoulder. You are not seriously struck."

"Monsieur, never before did man say that to me, and live. Were you not felon and thief. I would strike you where you stand. Ay, I mean the words—now listen; lift that sword point, and I shoot you dead. Monsieur de Tonty, show the man the papers."

Cassion took them as though in a daze, his hand trembling, his eyes burning with malignant rage. I doubt if he ever saw clearly the printed and written words of the document, but he seemed to grasp vaguely the face of La Barre's signature.

"Monsieur, never before did man say that to me, and live. Were you not felon and thief. I would strike you where you stand. Ay, I mean the words—now listen; lift that sword point, and I shoot you dead. Monsieur de Tonty, show the man the papers."

"'Tis the great seal of France," he said soberly, looking about at the faces surrounding him, "and the signature of the governor. How came it here?"

"By my hand," returned La Forest proudly. "You know me—Monsieur Francis de Forest."

"Ay, I know you, ever a follower of La Salle, and friend of Frontenac. 'Twas through his influence you got this."

"'Tis little use for us to quarrel, M. Cassion—the order is genuine."

"'Mon Dieu, I care not for such an order; it does not supersede my commission: I outrank this De Tonty."

"Hush, do not play the fool."

"Better the fool than the coward."

"Wait," said La Forest sharply, "the general is not ended. You are Francois Cassion of Quebec."

"Major of infantry, commissaire of the Governor La Barre."

"So the titles read in this document. I arrest you by king's order for treason to France, and mutilation of official records. Here is the warrant, M. de Baugis, and your orders to convey the prisoner to Quebec for trial."

Cassion's face went white, and he struggled madly for breath. De Baugis grasped the paper, so startled at this new development as to be incapable of comprehension.

"Under arrest? For what, monsieur? Treason, and mutilation of official records? What does it mean?"

"This—the man knows, and will not deny the charge. False testimony sworn to, and signed by this Francois Cassion, charged Captain in Chezayenne with cowardice and treason. In consequence the latter was broken of his command, and his estates forfeited to the crown. Later, through the efforts of Frontenac, the king was convinced of injustice, and the estates were restored by royal order. This order reached Quebec, but was never recorded. This Cassion was then private secretary to the governor, and the paper came into his hands. Later, to push up the scandal, he married Captain in Chezayenne's daughter against her will. The day this was accomplished the lost order was placed on file."

"You saw it?"

That is the consumer's cry, and many of the answers—from city "investigators"—blame the producer. It's about time we heard the farmer's side.
